At Ahlstrom-Munksjö, we believe that zero accidents are possible!

Ahlstrom-Munksjö businesses are related to operating with paper, fiber and pulp processes and working in circumstances where considerable hazards are present. The company's operations require therefore an excellent performance in safeguarding health, safety, and environmental related issues. This needs to be reflected in a systematic and efficient health and safety management process.

Health and safety is an essential part of our business ethics. This policy sets out the minimum requirements and expectations for health and safety leadership and accountability. By continuously setting targets to improve, developing consistencies and managing complacencies, we will build a strong safety culture that will increase the health and safety accountability globally for all employees, contractors and visitors. The benefits of this culture extend to many other aspects of the business, motivating and engaging employees making it more efficient and profitable.

Our Occupational Health and Safety Policy describes the principles that direct the way we shall conduct all our activities to ensure we provide a safe working environment for everyone. These requirements shall be used together with existing local and national legal requirements, and local instructions.

Our targets and commitments are:

1. To achieve zero accidents through our systems of ten preventative activities.
2. That all production facilities shall be certified with ISO45001:2018 Occupational Health and Safety management system; that they comply with this policy, safety standards, guidelines, safety rules, life-saving rules and also review these annually.
3. To ensure that all employees, contractors and visitors understand that they are responsible for their own safety and the safety of all others by their actions in the area they are working in.
4. To incorporate health and safety as an essential part of our local activities and operations with the support of a safety expert network organization coordinated by your local Health and Safety Manager.

In order to provide and maintain a safe and healthy work environment for all employees, the Company strictly prohibits the use of tobacco products on all Ahlstrom-Munksjö premises and vehicles as from 2022.
